INDEX

OF AUTHORS QUOTED OR REFERRED TO, AND OF SYSTEMS AND TOPICS INCIDENTALLY DISCUSSED.

2M

ABKLAKD, liis maxim, 508.
Academics, 64.
Adaptation, principle of, 2, 3, 125, 158, 519.
Affliction, 29-35, 197, 198, 204-207.
Alexander on Moral Science, 318, note,.
Alfred the Great, 281.
Alison, Rev. A., 302.
Alinon, Sir A., 204.
Allotropinm, 522.
Aiisclm, hit) tlieistic argument, 7, note;
hiH maxim, 508.
A priori principles to be ascertained by a posteriori induction, 280-291, 508, 535.
Aristotle, his principle of clarification, 122; intuition the beginning of de-xuoxiBtration, 292 ; his ethics have no respect to God, 322.
Association of ideas, 137, 301, note, 342-345, 427.
Atheism, 3, 4, 48-54,207-215.
Augustine, 137, note, 408, 452.

BACON, 78, 142, note, 179, 213, 289, 381, 390, 452.
Baylo, 60.
Bell, Sir C., 3, 158.
Beauty, 137, 138,427.
Bledsoo'B work on the Will noticed, 541, 542.
Bonaparte, Napoleon, 52.
Browster, Sir D., 108, 154, note,
Brougham, 250, 435.
Brown, Dr. T., his view of suffering cxa-mined, 30-34; his statement as to inconsistency of a general and particular providence, 159 ; overlooks the will, 267, 311, note; his view of fundamental principles, 293 ; his meagre views of the moral faculty, 291; his analysis of love, 313 ; influence of desire on mental trains, 342; referred to, 403; quoted, 431; review of his theory of cause and ett'ect, 523-527; a defect of his philosophy, 539, 540.
Browne, Sir T., 128, 185.
Buchanan on Affliction, 204, note.
Buckland, 125.
Butler, 8, 55, 69; his view of the moral faculty, 297-307; of virtue, 309.
Burke, 33, note, 49, 140, 482.
Burns, II., 378, 44G.
Byron, 335, 378,403, 405, 440.

CALVIN, on self-determining power of will, 274; referred to, 408.
Carlyle, 8, 98, 250, 444.
Carpenter, 90, 97.
Causation, 82-8G, 108410, 113, 114, 273-276, 520, 523-530, 534, 5U9, 543.
Culsuji, 51.
Chalmers, 55; principle as to laws and collocations of matter, 87, 88, 10(5, note; method of answering pray<;r, 220-222; volition and desire, 207, 311, note, 314, note; virtuous acts voluntary, 310 ; done because virtuous, 315; emotion becoming morally good or evil, 345, 346; referred to, 408, note.